They were Robt. Carlton and Thomas Stone, both white and men with families. B. F. Trathin, the mine boss, escaped by crawling a quarter of a mile to the air shaft.

The explosion was caused by coal dust, which had accumulated in the mine during the week. By good fortune the force of men employed in the plant, thirty-eight in number, had knocked off for the day, and only the mine boss and two men were in the mine at the time. Carlton and Stone are shockers and were making the shots preparatory to to-morrow's work, when the dust in the hole was ignited and the flame was communicated to the rest of the mine.

Peyton and his son, William Peyton, colored, were arrested and locked up. They were tried before Squire Smith, and William Peyton and Thomas Allen were bound over to court under bonds of $500 each. Old man Peyton was released. Peyton testified that he had bought a number of loads of tobacco from these parties, who were all employed at the People's Warehouse, but they had represented to him that they were given permission to pick up and have all tobacco on the floor of the warehouse after inspection had been made.

Johns, and to offer them one sum of five thousand dollars each, for the vile purpose of securing, and inducing them to cast their votes at the time and in the manner provided by law for said election, for the said W. Godfrey Hunter and his said unlawful means to secure his election as said office, against the peace and dignity of the Commonwealth of Kentucky."

John S. Smith, Commonwealth's Attorney.

Witnesses: John W. Gaines, Fred L. Gordon, Mrs. Daisy Gause, W. H. Jarke, Mrs. J. B. Lewis, Chas. Willis, John H. Stuart, D. R. Collier.

Bench warrants will be issued returnable for next term for the said Bill has been fixed at $240. Judge Cantrell said: "It is not my purpose to try these cases until the next term of court, but if the parties come in court and ask for an immediate trial I will proceed with the cases if I have time during this term, otherwise the cases will go over until September."

John W. Riddan has been employed to defend Hunter, Wilson and Franks and held a conference with them.

James Andrew Scott has been employed to defend Gaines and Tanner.

Hunter's friends are so confident that the perjury charge was not returned, that they are making no effort to secure his release from jail.

Dr. Hunter was asked what effect the charges would have on his candidacy if it be so that he is a candidate. He replied that he would not be elected.

Only a formal ballot was taken to-day and a truce has been declared until Tuesday.

GREECE AND TURKEY.

Formal Declaration of War Will Soon be Declared.

Constantinople, April 17.—The Council of Ministers after a session at the palace to-day, declared that war had broken out on the frontier owing to the incursion by the Greeks on Turkish territory, and Edhem Pasha, the Turkish military commander, was ordered to assume the offensive.

The situation is summed up in a detailed circular sent this evening to the Turkish representatives abroad. This circular recalls the week's invasion of Turkish territory, and stated that the new incursion of participants in by Greek troops, thereby establishing war.

The circular expresses hope that the powers in a spirit of justice, will agree that the entire responsibility for the war falls on Greece. Turkey has no idea of conquest, the circular adds, and as a result of the sentiments the Sublime Porte offers to retire the Turkish troops on the frontier if Greece will retire her forces from the frontier and from Crete.

Charged With Herbery and Hunter May be Caught For Forgery—Brennan Franks One of Them.

Frankfort, Ky., April 17.—The grand jury at 10:30 o'clock this morning made a partial report to Judge Cantrill and asked leave to sit again next week. The proposed indictment for perjury against Dr. Hunter is still pending before the jury.

LEGAL OLLA-PODRIDA.

Funny State of Affairs in the District of Columbia.

What is an Offense on One Side of Rock Creek is Perfectly Legitimate on the Other Side.

(Special Washington Letter.)

The laws which are enforced in the District of Columbia are peculiar. Many of the old laws of Maryland, which were made before this land was ceded to the federal government, are still in force. Then there are federal laws which were enacted before the creation of the territorial form of government; laws enacted by the territorial legislature, and laws enacted by congress since the present form of government was created in 1872.

The ancient city of Georgetown was an independent corporation until recently, but it is now West Washington. It is separated from the national capital by Rock creek, and the laws there are in many instances different from the laws on the east side of Rock creek. Many acts punishable as offenses in that section do not constitute offenses under the laws governing the rest of the district. Many of these old laws, though they may never have been repealed, are seldom enforced, and then only when many complaints are made about a certain thing, and the old law books are overhauled. Now and then one of these old law books is resurrected, and for awhile persons have to obey it, but it soon becomes a dead letter again, and the law is violated with impunity for another score or more of years. Every few years the question of enforcing the Sabbath is agitated. Some of the old laws are found to meet the case. It is a violation of one of the old Georgetown corporation laws to sell on Sunday any article except medicines, fresh fish, milk and other perishable goods which cannot be kept over night with safety, but this law is seldom enforced, and then only when complaint is made, or after a general order has been issued notifying storekeepers to close their places on Sunday. This law, like many others, has been construed in the courts and found to be valid.

Then there is another law which prohibits any manual labor on the Sabbath. This law, like the preceding one, has been contested and held to be still in force. It provides:

"That none effectually to prevent irregular practices so common on Sunday, every person working or commanding or suffering their children or slaves to work, except in cases of necessity, or otherwise profane the Sabbath by gaming, loafing, fishing or other unlawful pastimes, shall, on conviction, firing of guns or other firearms made punishable under an act of October 24, 1871. The penalty provided was five dollars, one-half of which went to the informer. If the person violating the law was a slave or indentured servant the penalty was ten lashes, unless two dollars was paid by him or his master or mistress.

An act to prevent guards from running at large was passed in 1795, giving police power to kill all goats found running at large, and to sell the same at the market-house to the best advantage, the person doing so to retain one-third the money received and the corporation to receive the other half. September 4, 1861, an act was passed to keep dogs out of the market-house, where it appeared they went to get meat and other vegetables.

A GUARDIAN OF THE PEACE.

tables from the stands. A tax of one dollar was assessed on dealers whose dogs were found within the walls of the market, but country dogs were not troubled, provided they were kept a respectable distance from the stands. A penalty of $20 was provided under act of March 1, 1861, for non-keeping of public gaming table, whether "A, B, C," "L, S, D," "E, O," or other game. A subsequent act, entitled an "Ordinance to restrain vice," including "roolery pools," or faro bank, faro table and hazard, and prescribed the same penalty.

An act approved April 20, 1868, regulated and fixed the size of loaves of bread offered for sale. The loaves were to be made in size according to the quality of the flour used and were to sell at the same price per loaf. The vagrancy act under which vagrants are now prosecuted fixes the term of imprisonment at not more than 30 days. The act also provides that if he fails to pay the jailer's fees he shall, with consent of the mayor, be sold at vendue to serve and labor for any time not exceeding four months. There are other acts of the old corporation regulating commerce and protecting the river and various business interests. The chimney sweep is required, under penalty, to faithfully perform his duties, and to his advantage a penalty is prescribed for placing a stove pipe through the exterior wall of any frame building or through the roof of any house, so that stove pipes, under the law, are not permitted to pass through the frame partitions of summer kitchens.

"It would be almost impossible to enforce many of these laws," said a policeman, "yet when complaints are made and the law is found, there is nothing else to do, and until congress acts in the matter the old laws will remain under the old laws. We work under too many laws," continued the officer. "Inside the city limits we have one set of laws and in the county we have an entirely different set. What is an offense in one place is permitted in another. Within the limits of West Washington a man may strip off his clothing and walk the streets in the face of the officers because there is no law to punish him, but if he does the same thing in the river shore and goes a lashing before nine o'clock in the evening he may be arrested for unlawful bathing. On the eastern side of Rock creek the same state of affairs exists."

"Persons can do an act not in violation of the law on one side of Boundary street, but if they repeat it on the other side they soon find themselves in the hands of the law. Then, again, there are some offenses punishable by a heavy fine in one section, while the person in another section is not half so heavy. Such a state of affairs makes it very hard for a policeman to know whether he is doing his duty properly or not."

While all Georgetown policemen are required to know something of law, and in the law at that, the policemen in one section are not so well versed in the law as the policemen in another section. The law is not half so heavy. Such a state of affairs makes it very hard for a policeman to know whether he is doing his duty properly or not."

Just across the river from Georgetown, on the Virginia shore of the Potomac, there is a series of police regulations, and very few of them seem to have brains enough to master even that much literature. At any rate, they are a series of laws, regulations, and knowingly wink at violations. It is a mistake to suppose that the tip of the tongue is the most sensitive part of the body. Those engaged in polishing billiard balls or any other substance that requires a high degree of smoothness, invariably use a tool known as their touchstone for detecting any roughness.

MELLOW BY AGE

Story of the Purchase of a Rare Amati Violin.

"Did I ever tell you how I came to pick up this glorious Amati?" observed a musician whose instrument had been long admired for the rare quality of its tones, which are broad, full and resonant. "I was passing a street corner one day in New York city when I noticed one of those fake musicians. He had one arm with which he held his violin, while between the toes of one of his bare feet he grasped the bow. The bow was motionless, and he 'made music' by moving the violin up and down. Despite the scratchiness of the tones, I recognized something in their quality which caused me to listen, street fakir though he was. There was something sweet and delicious about the notes, although he played execrably. The mellow spirit of the ages seemed to lurk in that beautiful box, and I listened in just as a connoisseur of rare wines will pause, survey a glass of old vintage and inhale the bouquet with genuine pleasure."

"Will you let me see your violin?" I asked.

"He did so. 'Where did you get this?' I continued, examining it and noting that it was an Amati, without doubt, of great value."

"Man who has a second-hand store had the pieces and sold them to me."

"How many pieces were there?"

"Eight."

"Who put them together?"

"A violin-maker."

"Didn't he try to buy the instrument?"

"Yes, but I knew what it was worth. The swindling, miserable old fool offered me $10,000, $20,000."

"You know what it's worth? Good! I will give you $600 and a violin for it. This may be buying it cheap, but think what the money will mean to you. I won't offer you any more, because I can't afford it."

"I'll take it. That driving, miserable violin-maker, how disappointed he will be. He once told me to see every day. He tried to steal one of the pieces, but I sat there while he put them together. Take it."

"To those who might think this story rather extravagant I would recommend the strange histories of some famous violins and they will no longer discredit the history of my lovely instrument."—Detroit Free Press.

Utilizing Water Power.

According to present indications the waterfalls and rapids in the country will some day be utilized as a generator of electricity. The latest achievement in the way of utilizing power is throwing a large dam across the St. Lawrence at the La Chine rapids. Its dam runs out something more than 1,000 feet into the river, and takes in an immense body of water. The entire length of the dam is to be occupied by a power house with an unbroken interior of over 1,000 feet. A large number of the most modern turbines are being used for similar purposes. With a good fall, a force sufficient to burn a good-sized dynamo may easily be secured.

May 24 will be Kentucky day at the Tennessee Centennial.

Nearly all of the State Press Associations will make excursions to Nashville this year.

Congressman Seth L. Milliken, of Maine, is critically ill with something like pneumonia.

Hostilities have begun between the Turks and Greeks, the Greeks being the aggressors.

Gen. Rivera is said to be suffering greatly from his wounds and his life is despaired of. He will not be executed.

Congressman Shattuck, of Ohio, has appointed a negro cadet to the Annapolis Naval school. He will be the only one there.

Patterson, New Jersey, Hobart's town, which gave McKinley 3,400 majority last year, will vote Democratic last week by 1,500 majority.

About one-third of the wheat has been winter-killed around Leitchfield. The farmers are preparing the ground formerly sown in wheat for corn.

Bristow continues to grid out about a hundred postmortems a day, but Kentucky is still left out and will get no pie of any sort until a Senator is elected.

The great fires at Knoxville, Nashville and Chattanooga will leave little insurance profits in the State of Tennessee this year. The losses amounted to over $100,000.

Mr. Bryan lectured on "Bimetallism" to a big crowd in Louisville Saturday night. Afterwards he was entertained by Allen R. Carter, of the Dispatch.

The Louisville banks are resisting the payment of taxes under the recent decision of the court of appeals and have filed suits restraining the State from collecting the taxes.

July wheat went up four cents Saturday, closing at 72 cents. If it will stay up until the producers have a crop to sell, there will be a touch of real prosperity in the eastern states.

The deposed Democratic committee of Jefferson county has elected M. W. Neal as chairman to fill a vacancy and the new committee has elected Jas. T. O'Neal to a similar position. As both are good silver men it is now merely a question of Neal or O'Neal, with the O'Neal committee recognized by the party authorities.

Mrs. Elizabeth Tilton, wife of Theodore Tilton, died about whom the great Beecher-Tilton scandal arose twenty or more years ago, died in Brooklyn last week, aged 70 years. Theodore Tilton still lives in Paris. Rev. Henry Ward Beecher lived down the scandal and continued as pastor of Brooklyn church until his death.

Why should Democrats elect Henry Martin to the Senate? He is not out of accord with the party on the money question, but is at the same time a protectionist who advocated and pushed by the sugar bounty of a few years ago. It is true he has been a staunch supporter of Senator Blackburn, but he was elected by Blackburn's own people to do that very thing and as an honorable man he could not do otherwise, without sinking to the level of the Dairies, the Stephenses, the Vilets and other worst scoundrels in the present legislature, who have betrayed their constituents.

Speaking of delegates, Bob Hodge of Eddyville, is not only a politician of the first water but is a born delegate who has taken all of the degrees. No man took a more prominent part in the recent Eddyville convention than he. He was red-hot for Cook & Howell and never let up until he had landed both of his men as winners. His ability as a political manager was displayed all through the convention and his influence extended into other delegations besides that of Lyon county. He made himself agreeable and popular with all the delegations. On the floor of the convention he was cool and calculating even in the most exciting moments and never once lost his head. Bob might not be able to take the first prize at a beauty show, but he is a mighty good man to have on your side in politics.

The first issue of the new Democratic state organ, the Louisville Dispatch, appeared Sunday and was all that its promoters had promised. Hon. B. A. Ealoe is the editor-in-chief, E. C. McDowell, managing editor; Dick Ryan, telegraph editor; Dick Work, city editor, and the editorial staff is made up of Perry Farusley, Chas. Wickliffe, Ben Watt, Albert Rogers, Henry Drescher and others. Allen R. Carter is business manager and Tom Drowery advertising solicitor. The paper is strictly first-class in its get up and as the only Democratic daily in Louisville it has a great field to draw its support from and its success is assured in advance.

It is about time for the daily papers to drop that rank fake about an airship that is seen only at night and then in Nebraska, Indiana, Tennessee and Kentucky at the same time. An Illinois scientist says the distorted appearance of Venus, surrounded by a haze, is the heavenly body that has been mistaken for a monster airship with an electric headlight.

Massachusetts, Virginia, Ohio and Iowa will hold state elections in November. In three of the four states mentioned the Republicans may look out for defeat. Massachusetts is to radical too count on.

Congressman Seth L. Milliken, for years representing the Third Maine district, died in Washington Sunday night from a complication of troubles.

SLOWLY SUBSIDING

Are the Waters in the Submerged Delta.

Memphis, April 17.—Throughout the flooded Mississippi Delta to day the situation is more encouraging. The backwaters are slowly falling, passing through the Yazoo into the main channel north of Vicksburg. At Helena the river has fallen nearly five feet since April 4.

In the northern part of that city which has been under water for more than three weeks, the water has fallen sufficiently to allow many people to move back into their houses. The water inside the southern part of the city is fast disappearing by means of gigantic pumps which are kept running night and day.

At Rosedale, Friar Point, Greenville and other Delta points the river is falling.

At Memphis a fall of one tenth of a foot is recorded, the gauge registering 53.7 at 7 o'clock.

Hanged White Playboy.

Bowling Green, Ky., April 17.—A son of London Pedigo, who lives at Trammel, Allen County, a few miles from the city, accidentally hanged himself this morning. The boy was playing in the barn when the accident happened, and when found he was hanging from a rafter with a rope around his neck.

Mr. L. C. Allison, who lives in the Chandler's Chapel neighborhood, in this county, the owner of a mare that last week gave birth to two colts, one of which was a horse and the other a mule colt. Some people make the kind on record, but it is an actual fact and is vouched for by unimpeachable witnesses. —Russellville Ledger.

Internal Pains—Lame, Tired, Nervous—Every Bad Symptom Cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"For nearly five years I suffered with a severe case of stomach trouble. I had pains in my stomach and bowels so that I could not stand on my feet without great suffering. My appetite was very poor and when I did eat anything I was shortly afterwards seized with vomiting spells. I could not rest at night and felt lame and tired all over. I became nervous and had no energy whatever. My life seemed gloomy and hopeless. My husband advised me to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, as he had been taking it with great benefit. I began taking it and the first bottle did me a great deal of good. I continued with it regularly and have now almost fully regained my natural weight and am doing nearly all my housework."

Vacation Days.

In the Lake Regions of Wisconsin, Northern Michigan, Minnesota, Iowa and South Dakota, along the lines of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway, are hundreds of charming localities preeminently fitted for summer homes, nearly all of which are located on or near lakes which have not been finished out. There resorts range in variety from the "full dress for dinner" to the flannel costume for every meal. Among the list are names familiar to our readers as the perfection of Northern summer resorts. Nearly all of the Wisconsin points of interest are within a short distance from Chicago or Milwaukee, and none of them are so far away from the "busy marts of civilization" that they cannot be reached in a few hours of travel, by frequent trains, over the fastest road in the Northwest—the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway. Novel Schemes for Pictorial Article

Before the Public

A new form of advertisement, involving the use of an entire train of Pullman cars, has some picturesque features. The train is to be filled with exhibits of the leading products. It is to make a trip extending over six months, and embracing cities of from 10,000 to 75,000 population. The representative of any firm exhibiting can travel on the train, in order to arrange to meet any local merchants, show samples and do business. For a concern without a train, the Pullman cars, by correspondence to have any merchant in the cities visited meet the train en route. The train will consist of twelve cars (ten exhibition cars, a hotel car and a baggage car), lighted by electricity and heated by steam.
The baggage car will contain the electric lighting plant, and will carry advertising matter for the exhibitors in limited quantity. Luxurious provision will be made for the reception and entertainment of visitors. An advance man will be sent on to every town, to "paper" and "lithograph" it to the particular extent desired by any exhibitor. Exhibitors can send as many representatives as they like on the train, but all personal and transportation expenses must be paid by them. If the accommodation on the train does not suffice, an extra train will be provided. It seems rather hard to confine the attractions of such a unique jaunt to the sterner sex, but the rule made by the management is inflexible: "Men only will be permitted as representatives, it being impossible to make accommodations for women." The train will be open to the merchants of the cities visited up to 12 o'clock, after which it will be thrown open to the public during the afternoon and evening. A record is to be kept of the number of persons visiting the train at each city, put into bulletin form and mailed to the principal office of each exhibitor, with any other information of commercial importance. Intending exhibitors are assured that the train will be made in every respect "as attractive as possible," and as a finishing touch to the spectacular feature of this novel undertaking, the whole train will be painted white and gold.—St. Louis Republic.

DOG OR BURGLAR.

One Gentleman Thinks the Latter Would Be Cheaper.

Whether it is cheaper to hire a burglar or keep a dog is the problem which is confronting a gentleman at St. Anthony park. The other evening he went out with his wife for an hour or two, leaving the dog of the household on guard. The presence of the dog in the house was thought to be a sure preventive of the burglary disease, and so it proved, indeed, and it served to introduce a new difficulty as troublesome as that which the crafty crackman is supposed to crack about with him in his kit of evil tools.
The dog amused himself in a very entertaining style all the evening.
In the first place he tore the covering off from a fine lounge and ripped its handsome cloth into sorts of size and pieces. He was evidently quick in touch with upholstery, but he was also somewhat of a connoisseur in hangings and draperies, and, not liking the general appearance of the lace curtains, he proceeded to tear them down and chew them up with that peculiarly delightful doguish abandon which is so characteristic of the race.

But even a lace curtain and a big lounge didn't satisfy his appetite, so he pulled down a fine fur cape, which was hanging in the hall, and literally chewed it into bits. The fur was a sort of a change in the bill of fare, and pleased the canine epicure mightily.
After he had satisfied his craving for fur, he took a look about for some other choice edible, and, as his eye lighted on a rug, he determined to give it a fair trial as a medium of satisfying his hunger. He found the rug a trifle heavy for his digestion, but managed to tear it up to some degree, and then left it.

When the gentleman and his wife returned the house looked as if a small, but vigorous, cyclone had been swishing around. The dog was as contented as could be, and had very admirably barked off the burglars. It will take at least $75 to repair the damage caused by the playful dog.
Said the gentleman, in commenting on the affair:

"It strikes me it would be better next time to hire a burglar to come in and steal what he wanted than to leave the dog on guard."—Minneapolis

Size in Hats.

A size in hats is one-eighth of an inch. According to the English method, the smaller diameter of the head is taken as a starting point.
One-eighth of an inch increase in the shorter diameter makes a little more than three-eighths in the circumfer-ence. The French and German hat-makers have a rule slightly different from this.

What is the board of education?
The school-master's shingle.
March, April, May.

Almost every one has come to believe that March, April and May is a season that brings derangements of the body dependent on blood impurities.
This belief is an old one, is nearly universal, and has arisen, not as the result of a theory, but as the result of fraternity, but has been based in the bitter school of experience. Depression of the nervous system at the approach of spring is a fertile source of blood impurities—general lassitude, dull, heavy sensations, continual tired feelings, with irregular appetite, and sometimes loss of sleep.

Peruna means every indication and proves itself to be perfectly adapted to all these varied peculiarities. Peruna investigates the system, regularizes the feeling, restores the normal appetite and procures regular sleep. That tired feeling which is the natural result of the depressing effect of warm weather immediately after the invigorating cold of winter, quickly disappears when Peruna is used, and the system is daily testifying to its priceless benefit.

THE ENGLISH DRAMA.

Its Origin and Early History—The Miracle Plays.

James A. Herne, the old-time actor, who combines with his presentation of Shore Acres a tendency to stage reminiscence in the lecture field, recently delivered a lecture in Kansas City on the "Theater as it is." He remarked: "The theater is a factor of society just as much as the church, and it is an educator, and its influence is for good and not for evil." To which a writer in the Cleveland Leader, taking mild exception, says that it should not be overlooked that the English drama began in the church in the form of miracle plays, a pantomimic method of imparting religious instruction, as well as social entertainment. It was introduced by the clergy; the priests were the first actors, and the churches were the first theaters. The subjects were taken from Scripture history and the lives of the saints, and the representations known as mysteries and miracle plays, were little else but acting (pau-tomime), for long before Tennyson's day it was recognized that "things seen are mightier than things heard," and these sublime object lessons were presented to the public 200 years before the first English drama. The spectacle was aided by the use of English words in the fourteenth century, and though town guilds undertook the performance, the church was still the producer of these religious plays. In the early part of the fourteenth century the pope gave a monk leave to write a set of 35 miracle plays in English. They began with "The Downfall of Lucifer" and ended with "Paradise Lost." It is well known that Milton's first intention "in the subject of 'Paradise Lost' was to treat it as a miracle play, and he had actually made a commencement.

The morality came in later than the miracle play. This new step in the direction of the English drama was made in the fifteenth century in the reign of the "Holy Henry," and was under the special patronage of that good man, who founded and equipped the English first grammar school (as preparatory schools were called even as late as our colonial days), within sight of the windows of Windsor, that he might see it grow and, later, watch the boys at their play.

The morality was allegorical, and taught some lesson of duty or virtue through such actors as Benevolence, Honor, Retribution, etc. The virtue, of course, triumphed, and the vice (out of which grew the clown of comedy) was in the end defeated and humiliated. Like all religious teaching, the morality failed to attract those who most needed its lessons, and the practice was introduced of enterprising the entertainment by interpolating humorous scenes, designed to attract and hold the audience together. These interludes took the place of the Christmas tree and the Sunday-school picnic to the modern management. The entertainment by interpolating humorous scenes, designed gether. These interludes took the John Skelton, at the court of Henry VII., wrote an elaborate morality entitled "Magnificence." So prominent a churchman as Erasmus styled him "the grace and glory of English scholars." He had the courage to attack the court (of Henry VIII.) in "Colin Clout," and the prime and favorite, Wolsey, in a later poem.

The last of the order of the monks was obliged to "take sanctuary" in Westminster, where he remained a prisoner till his death.

The first historic play, "King John," was written by a bishop, John Bale.

The first English comedy was written by Nicholas Udall, head master of Eton school, and acted (1551), but seven years before Elizabeth came to the throne; yet the Elizabethan age produced the drama at its height.
This marvellous birth of a full-blown Athenian from the brain of a single age would be unaccountable did we forget that the roots of the English drama had been in nurture 400 years.

The first English tragedy, Sackville's "Gorboduc," was put upon the stage in 1561.

John Still, who was afterward made bishop, continued Udall's comedy, under a new name, and here we come to the full efflorescence of Elizabeth's day in Marlowe, Ben Jonson and Shakespeare.

The First English Book.

The first book written in the English language, that is, after the Saxon and assumed a form as now an English, was the "Travels of Sir John Mandeville." This book is remarkable from the fact that it shows a clear and correct idea of the shape of the earth, and that it is possible to travel round and return to the starting point from the opposite direction, thus anticipating the discovery of Columbus by nearly a century and a half.
